ORIGINAL MISCELLANY.

SCENE FROM "THE BRIDE OF GENOA."
(AN UNPUBLISHED TRAGEDY.)

[Alphonso, Duke of Genoa, for early and generally forgotten injuries, sought to be revenged on his cousin, Lorenzo St Lascar, accepted suitor of a Genoese girl, the daughter of Lord Salvado. The father, by unforeseen misfortune, reduced to penury, listened to the Duke's dazzling offer, of being reinstated in his former possessions, provided he would assist him to his daughter's hand—giving his oath to that effect. Alphonso, having caused St Lascar to be called for a time from Genoa, proceeded to estrange, by jealousy, the affections of his victim; until a feigned confession, from a rival, of St Lascar's falseness, drove her to insanity. Then Salvado first relented, his natural affection returned, and he sought, with desperation, a release from his oath. The scene opens with the Duke, as a last step of villainy, despatching a forged letter of parting reproach from St Lascar to the Genoese maiden.]

[Alphonso and Francisco.]

Alp. Seek out this letter's mistress,
Lady Fontella; some command from Rome.
Fran. From Rome, your Grace?
Alp. Tell her some word from Rome.

[Lord Salvado enters to detain him.]

Sal. I bid you hold!
Alp. Who dares oppose?
Sal. A father—
Till now a blind, ambitious, heartless father!
Henceforth—
Alp. Pshaw! fellow, on—why, on, I say! [exit Fran.
Rashness itself, my lord, could scarce do more
Than thus expose you. Sir, take heed, take heed!
Remember, sir, you are—
Sal. A father!
Alp. Say
A famished beggar—yet the fool withal
To spurn the morsel lying at thy foot!
Sal. Nay, nay, I'll tell thee, sir. Truly most poor
In wealth this world can give; yet, in what's worth
The prizing, rich, how rich!—my daughter, sir!
Alp. A bankrupt rich in wealth he would possess!
Fie, Lord Salvado! this the hour to shrink!
No more—
Sal. Yes, more; I've been a wretch too long!
'Twas when misfortune so had dealt with me,
Thou knew'st me for a beggar—when from state
Befitting a proud title, I had sunk
To penury; then 'twas your highness chose
To use me for your purpose! to seek out
The trampled spark of a still-lingering pride,
And with high promise fan it into action!
Then was that oath—but know, lord duke, since last
We met, I am an altered man. Last night
I met her as she passed with the confession;
I could have died before that poor girl's look—
That fixed, sad eye! Then on the marble floor,
Her cheek its paleness mocking, she knelt down
In prayer for him whom she believed untrue:
Ay, and for thee and me. Great Heaven, she prayed
For me!
Alp. Thine oath must have its way, old man;
A timid voyager who shrinks at storms!
Sal. That oath was wrung from me; it shall not kill
My child! Wife of thy bed, and of thy throne
The grace, she may not be; 'twill drive her mad.
Alp. Why, man, she is my ware, my house, my land.
Thou did'st as well as sell when reduced,
To be again enriched; pledging to aid
Me to her hand. 'Twas bargained so, my lord?
Sal. Ay, bargained, sir! That word best tells my baseness.
Alp. My lord, recall the high tone of your bearing.
Your rank, observance, equipage and splendor,
Think how 'twill gall you to forego that state;
Do not the sums suffice?
Sal. Oh, thou would'st damn me more!
No, duke,—restore the happiness I've lost!
Restore an injured daughter to my love,—
Her lightsome step, her smile of filial trust,
Her fond devotion—duke, restore me these!
Ay, and a happy heart, a conscience free
From evil's taint, as this has been! Thy gold
Hath pilfered these—it cannot give them back.
Alp. Mark yon grey battlements, yon stone-reared peaks,
Towers and walls, which scale the unchained air,
In mockery of man! One word will arm them
With choicest Genoese; behooves me then,
Regard thy prayer? This ill-timed woman's weakness
Breaks not thy oath.
Sal. [Kneeling] But prayers and tears, it may be
An old man's tears, should melt it to the yielding!
Alp. Didst thou say tears?
Sal. Ay! childish tears do bathe
The time-drawn furrow of the old-man's cheek,
And moisten eyes which had forgot their wont.
Few, very few, Your Grace, should see me thus,—
Hark! from the eye, the proud and flashing eye
(Men say) of the Salvado hast thou wrung
A tear! Let it win back my daughter, duke!
Alp. Upon your knee, my lord.
Sal. Fiend! dost thou smile?
On human tongue ne'er hung the good before,
For which I've knelt! Would'st while a weary hour,
Or, raise another's wonder, say thou hast seen
The Lord Salvado kneeling at thy foot?
But—but—lord duke—add not—he was refused!
Alp. Old man, arise, I would not see thee thus.
Thy child—I've sworn it, and must keep the oath.
Sal. Must! must! ay, 'tis a tyrant's word! nay turn
Not hence, thou shalt—(Music without.)
Alp. A clarion,—and again! What sounds, my lord,
Break through the distance? Speak—
Sal. What thou wilt hate
To hear,—St Lascar doth return.
Alp. In triumph!
No—nor too late for good revenge—his bride
Shall greet him with the idiot's glare! Let pass—
Sal. Say she is mine,—duke, may I undeceive her?
Trifle no more, thou deal'st with desperation!
Am I refused?
Alp. Oh such revenge! Thy oath—
Can'st take it back? Let pass, I say!
Sal. [Starting up.] Back, duke!
By the fair Heaven I've lost, thou shalt not to her!
My arm is strong, though time hath palsied it,—
Age shall forget its weakness—
Alp. How, my lord! be calm,—
Handle not swords; we are unfairly matched.
An old man's blood—
Sal. Be calm, whilst thou dost kill
My child! Oh, calm! Lord duke, as thou'rt a man—
Alp. Old Lord, thou'rt rash—
[Both draw; before reaching the duke, Salvado falters, and falls in a swoon.]
Sal. Quick—haste! I'm weak,—my child,
Lord duke, my only child—(Swoons.)
Alp. Ambition, strong in age,—
To bring so low the manliest soul in Genoa!
Before, 'twere fitter to have played the father.—[Ex.

The Public Money.—The following article from the Globe exposes—in a clear light—the imposition which the Whigs are attempting to practice on the country relative to the public money. The Globe asks:

"Who profits by the Money in the Deposite Banks?—Heretofore it has been a constant topic of clamor against the administration, that the public money was locked up useless in the deposite banks, and to this source the late pressure upon the money market was attributed by all the whig organs throughout the country. The public money is hoarded in the deposite banks, which produces the present scarcity, says the veracious Noah, in the Evening Star. But now when the facts are exhibited, and it has been shown by official returns, that the deposite banks, since selected have loaned to the commercial community several millions more than the whole amount of their deposites of public money, the opposition have suddenly changed their tune. In commenting upon a recent statement in the Globe, showing the condition of the deposite banks, the nullifying organ of Saturday insinuates that the excess of their loans on personal security and domestic bills being nearly fifty millions since these banks received the deposites, has been produced by views of corrupt electioneering on the part of the present administration of the Government.

But we beg our readers to consider the following statement. We make it advisedly: More than three quarters of the stock of the deposite banks at this hour belongs to individuals who do not support, and have not supported, the administration of General Jackson. We distinctly challenge any respectable individual to gainsay this statement—that not more than one fourth part of the stockholders in amount of the present deposite banks are friends to the administration.—If the pecuniary influence of these banks, then, has been exercised with corrupt intentions, as the political friends of a majority of their stockholders allege, upon which side of the question has this influence, in all probability, been thrown?

It may be asked how it has happened that banks whose stockholders, in so great a proportion as we have stated, stand in the ranks of the opposition, should have been selected as depositories of the public money?—We reply, there was no alternative under the existing state of things, the banks in the commercial cities being almost entirely in their hands. The country had become convinced by dire experience, that a change from the domineering and corrupting influence of the United States Bank, which was co-extensive with the nation itself, was required for the protection of the rights and liberties of the people. The State banks could invest no individual with the power which was wielded, without responsibility, by Nicholas Biddle. They were not selected on account of any support of a political character, either given or expected to be given by them to the administration, but were resorted to from the necessity of the case for the purpose of rescuing the destinies of the country from the greatest of evils—of becoming the victim of the gigantic schemes of a great moneyed corporation. To any person familiar with the character of the individuals who control the deposite banks, the idea so frequently promulgated through the Whig organs, that the deposite banks exercise any political influence in favor of the administration, is therefore totally ridiculous. The personal feelings of the individuals who control these institutions, are almost wholly on the other side of the question.

Hence, if these banks are guilty of an improper use of the public money, by granting unwarrantable favors to their friends—by speculations, or by corruption, as the opposition aver—it is the opposition who are the actors and enjoy the advantage. It is the enemies of the administration who do the wrong, then first begin to brawl.

Had the administration or the Treasury Department committed or countenanced any improper uses of the public money deposited in these banks, through an agent or any other way, their officers would have long since proclaimed them to the world trumpet-tongued.

Moreover, if Messrs Calhoun, Webster & Co. really supposed that there now is a large surplus in the Treasury which will not be required within a reasonable period for public purposes, and which is either hoarded or corruptly used by the administration or its friends, why postpone the operation of their scheme of distribution for nearly a year? Why not begin the distribution of this surplus next August, September, or October, instead of delaying its commencement until April, 1837? Have these considerate gentlemen any apprehensions about the immediate destruction of that alleged corrupt influence, that they do not propose to cast it off at once? The supposition is folly.

The truth is, (and every person who does not wilfully shut his eyes upon the course which has been taken by Messrs Webster, Calhoun & Co. must perceive it,) that this postponement is either intended for the pecuniary advantage of their political friends in whose custody the surplus revenue has been placed, and who are now using it to some profit, and which may be greatly increased by this delay—or these gentlemen in fact believe that all the money now in the Treasury will be wanted before next April to meet constitutional expenditures; and this pretence of a future, distant distribution has been got up for the simple purpose of gulling the community, and to increase the influence of themselves and their partizans during the pendency of the Presidential election. Let them decide upon which horn of this dilemma they may choose to hang. One or the other clearly transfixes them."

Manufacturers and Millwrights will find in this paper an advertisement from the Managers of the "Trenton Delaware Falls Company," which is worthy of their attention. The Company possess water power and privileges of great value, located in the immediate vicinity of the largest markets in the nation, which it will be seen they offer to sell or lease upon highly advantageous terms. A map, exhibiting the situation of this important property and that contiguous, may be seen at the City Hall.

g Vote.—The Whig pa- ...arously affecting Mr Van ...on-slaveholding States, are ...ter of the bill which was ...by his casting vote. It will ...not prohibit the transmission ...on the subject of slavery, but only m... a Postmaster in any State, where, by a law of that State, the circulation of any "pamphlet, newspaper, handbill or other printed paper or pictorial representation, touching the subject of slavery, is prohibited," knowingly to DELIVER the same to any person. The bill has no reference whatever to the Postmasters in the free States, and only renders it incumbent upon the Postmasters in the slave States, to obey the laws of the States in which they reside. The following is a copy of the bill, as published in the Boston Advocate—the reader will do well to compare its provisions with those which have been imputed to it by the unprincipled Whig papers:—

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That it shall not be lawful for any deputy postmaster, in any State, Territory, or District, of the United States, knowingly to deliver to any person whatever, any pamphlet, newspaper, handbill, or other printed paper, or pictorial representation touching the subject of slavery, where, by the laws of the said State, Territory, or District, their circulation is prohibited—and any deputy postmaster who shall be guilty thereof, shall be forthwith removed from office.

Sec 2. And be it further enacted, That nothing in the acts of Congress to establish and regulate the Post Office Department, shall be construed to protect any deputy postmaster, mail carrier, or other officer or agent of said Department, who shall knowingly circulate, in any State, Territory, or District, as aforesaid, any such pamphlet, newspaper, handbill, or other printed paper or pictorial representation, forbidden by the laws of such State, Territory or District.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the deputy postmasters of the offices where the pamphlets, newspapers, handbills, or other printed papers or pictorial representations aforesaid, may arrive for delivery shall, under the instructions of the Postmaster General, from time to time, give notice of the same, so that they may be withdrawn, by the person who deposited them originally to be mailed, and if the same shall not be withdrawn in one month thereafter, shall be burnt or otherwise destroyed.

Fire.—The alarm of fire, at half past 3 o'clock, yesterday afternoon, proceeded from the third story of the stone building No. 53, Washington street, occupied by Joshua Lawrence, draper and tailor, by Elias Skinner, jun. draper and tailor, and the Mercantile Library. The fire was confined to the Library room; nearly all the books were destroyed, either by fire or water. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary. An unsuccessful attempt to fire the same premises was made about a week since—on Saturday last, the keys were stolen—at 12 o'clock yesterday, the door was found unlocked, but at the time of the alarm it was fast. A young man, a clerk in Kilby street, was arrested soon after the fire, on suspicion, but was subsequently discharged.

The Ne Plus Ultra.—An Easy Chair, invented and patented by B. F. Hays, may be seen at the Marlboro' Hotel, which is, in every respect, one of the most desirable articles for the sick that we have ever seen. It is, in fact, a chair, a crib, a cradle, or a bed, and can be changed from one to the other with the greatest ease. For persons suffering from fractured limbs it is invaluable, as it is furnished with conveniences for accommodating a lame limb, at any desired angle, from a horizontal to a vertical position. We cannot describe all its advantages in a brief paragraph, and advise all who are in want of such an article to examine for themselves.

☞ Mr Briggs of this state, and Judge Sutherland of Pennsylvania, had a little sharp shooting the other day upon the floor of the House of Representatives. The judge struck a back handed blow at the old federal party, the blue light boys, in answer to the expression on the part of Briggs that he wished to see the old doctrines of Jefferson revived with regard to the militia; that they were the proper defence of the country in the times of her emergency. Mr Sutherland asked if that militia could be depended upon, which would stop at a certain line and refuse to go any further?

TRIAL OF JAMES RILEY,

Indicted for the alleged Murder of GEORGE LOWELL, a lad aged 18 years, in Merchants' Row, about half past 8 o'clock, on the evening of the 19th of March, 1836.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT, Monday, June 20.—Present, His Honor Chief Justice Shaw, and Justices Putnam, Wilde, and Morton.

Counsel—For the Government, Attorney General Austin, and S. D. Parker, County Attorney. For the Prisoner, Rufus Choate, and Ezekiel Haskett Derby.

Jury.—Foreman, Charles Torrey—Fellows....Seth H. Barnes, Warren Bolles, Elijah Brigham, John B. McCleary, Bradley W. Cummings, Rowland Ellis, Horace Gay, John Binney, John S Lucas, Benjamin T. Read, and Edward Shaw.

The indictment alleges, that Riley killed Lowell, by stabbing him a little below the fifth rib, and piercing the left ventricle of the heart, with a knife, "valued at ten cents."

In opening the case, Mr Parker said that the character of young Lowell had been misrepresented by the newspapers of the day, and the public mind misled by statements to his prejudice. He expected to prove, that Lowell was an inoffensive young man, and had never before been engaged in a street row; was born in the State of Maine, and his relatives now live in Wiscasset; was 18 years old, but very fully developed, and an apprentice to Charles Clark, carpenter.

The opening argument was unusually elaborate, and numerous English and American authorities defining and distinguishing murder from manslaughter were cited; and Mr Parker said he expected to prove, although there would be some conflicting testimony, that the fatal transaction under investigation had all the characteristics of murder as distinguished from manslaughter. Having stated the facts which he expected to prove in support of the capital charge, Mr Parker commenced the examination of witnesses by calling—

1.—Dr Joshua B. Flint—one of the physicians who made a post mortem examination, on Sunday morning, March 20, in a chamber in Merrimack street. Thought Lowell was about twenty years of age—of a good size, a stout, athletic youth—very muscular—remarkably stout even for twenty years of age. The wound was directly under the fifth rib, and passed obliquely upward and outward—penetrated the left ventricle of the heart—thought at the time the wound was made by a spear-pointed instrument, but it might have been made by an instrument sharp only one side. An ordinary penknife was shown to Dr Flint, and he gave it as his opinion, that it would not have been likely to have produced the wound, but would not say that it could not have produced it. The wound in the cavity of the heart was much larger than the external wound—difference I supposed at the time was produced by the spontaneous action of the organ. The incision would naturally occasion a spasmodic action of the heart. The jacket and vest on the right side was also cut, but there was no corresponding wound on the body—on the left side the clothes were cut in a place corresponding to the wound. The marks on the face we thought he might have received by falling forwards.

Benjamin Lord Murphy—[15 or 16 years of age—an acquaintance of Lowell's]—On Saturday evening, the 19th of March, about half-past 8 o'clock, I was standing at the corner of North Market street and Merchants' row, and saw two Irishmen passing along towards Ann street; they were Riley and O'Neil; I also saw Lowell behind them; on the right hand side of the street, on the side-walk; all three were going towards Ann street; saw Lowell try to go by; he shoved the outside man in a little; then the Irishman struck at him; it was O'Neil that was outside; Lowell ran into the middle of the street, and O'Neil chased him into the street, and then struck him four or five times. Lowell catched hold of the Irishman, and hauled him down.

[A juror here asked the witness, who he meant by O'Neil, and he explained that he meant the prisoner, Riley.]

Witness resumes—The man who followed Lowell into the street was the tallest of the two Irishmen. After being pulled down, I saw Riley pick up his cap, and go on to the sidewalk, and pass along towards Ann street with O'Neil. Then Lowell turned round, picked up his cap, and fell on to his knees, and then on to his face. I did not speak to him, nor did he speak to me; nor did any one else speak to him. Somebody had halloa'd for a watchman, before any one said Lowell was stabbed. I went with Wentworth for the watchmen; the watch and I and Wentworth followed the two -men—O'Neil and Riley—down Ann street; came up with them near Blackstone st; brought them back; Lowell was then where I left him in the middle of the street. The body was taken into Mr Skinner's shop, under the Franklin House; it was taken home in a carriage.

I live in Commercial street, and worked at that time, and do now, for Mr Goodhue, in Union street. I had been standing at the corner about a minute; was not in company with any one; O'Neil had a basket; didn't see Riley have one; I don't know where Lowell came from; I could see as far as across the street; knew George Lowell before that night; I thought it was him when I first saw him; the centre of the street was much higher than the sidewalk. Before Lowell fell Riley called watch—[the witness was particularly inquired of, whether it was Riley who called "watch." He replied, "Yes."]

Witness continues—I thought the jostle or shove that Lowell gave Riley was a slight one, and by accident. The Irishmen occupied the whole sidewalk. Lowell shoved Riley in first, before Riley struck at him. I cannot be sure, whether he hit him—when he shoved Lowell into the middle of the street, he struck at him four or five times—Lowell struck back, till he got a fair hold of him, and hauled him down—they then separated. Their hats came off while they were scrabbling. Lowell turned round and stopped, when he jostled the Irishman, and then the Irishman struck at him. I don't know who it was that I heard say Lowell was stabbed.

Cross examined.—Went to the market with Luther Nichols; stopped at the steps; did not see Lowell there; nor any other boys; Nichols left me; I will swear that there were not six or eight boys near Lowell. I was 40 or 50 feet off, when I first saw Lowell; he was absent one step behind Riley; the first thing I noticed was the jostling. Only the three were then there; I will swear that there were not three or four persons inside, or about Lowell or Riley. There might have been one or two on the other side of the street. I had not seen the Irishmen till that time; I had been looking in an opposite direction; I was not near enough to see whether Lowell's arm was raised or not, when he ran against Riley; I did not notice particularly whether his arm was up; I did not say to Lowell—"Hit him again." I did not do any thing to encourage him; I did not hear or see other boys do so. The Irishmen, with their basket, took up the whole of the sidewalk: Riley called "Watch" two or three times before Lowell dropped: I say the shove was accidental: I never said I knew Lowell was to blame, but that it was not my place to go forth and tell of it. I never said so to any person, something older than myself: I had seen Lowell a great many times before that night: had seen him squaring off with other boys in fun: just to knock off their caps: never saw him knock an Irishman down on the Common: I did not consider him one of my particular friends: always spoke to him when I met him.

2.---Mary Ann Shaw—lived in Federal st., and on the evening of the 19th of March was going to Cross street. Left home after the clock had struck 8—when in Merchants' Row, beyond North Market street, and going North, I saw a number of lads running from the East sidewalk, and then saw two men—I was on the right or East side, and was interrupted by the two men—the younger man [Riley] had a dark jacket—the older one [O'Neil] had light clothes—the younger man was stooping down when I first saw them—he next raised himself up from the corner post, and sprung into the middle of the street. He took one of the lads by the collar—they struggled—as they struggled they came towards the head of Clinton street, where their caps fell off—as they struggled they got back to the middle of the street. Perhaps a minute after I saw the man that sprang into the middle of the street he come back to the post again—it was Riley—he passed from the crowd—O'Neil handed Riley his hat—Riley seemed out of breath—he was exhausted. O'Neil said to him—"Come along; don't be bothering here all night." O'Neil took up a basket from the sidewalk. The crowd interrupted my progress—I felt alarmed when I saw Riley spring in among the boys—I thought he was so much larger and stouter than any of the boys. There might have been five boys, but not more than eight. They seemed, when I first saw them, to be running from pretty near the post at the head of Clinton street, towards the Franklin House—did not hear any thing said—Riley was stooping down when I first saw him—I thought he was in a passion, for he sprang so quick into the middle of the street—he might have been putting a basket down, or he might have been rising from a fall—did not see nor hear any provocation—the boys who were running did not make any noise. I heard some one was stabbed, and I started. The Irishmen were turning round the corner of Merchants' Row, when the "Watch" was called, and the cry of stabbed made. There were from five to eight boys who ran from near the Post---they were all together, and kept together in the middle of the street.

Cross-examined.—I do not know what occasioned the boys to run; were together at that moment, and all the while I had them in my eye—Lowell was the tallest, but as the ground was higher in the street, could not judge of his actual heighth—when their caps fell off, Riley had Lowell by the collar with his left hand, and his right hand raised—they both stumbled, but did not go wholly down—did not see either of them have the other by the hair of the head. After the collaring, there was a short time I saw neither of them, they being surrounded. It appeared to me there were two baskets—I am not certain. The boys had ran, when I first discovered the man stooping—I could not see the man till the boys left the sidewalk. The gas lights in the shops were more brilliant than usual.

4. John B. French—about 18, apprentice to a carpenter—in company with another young man, saw five or six young men in a scuffle—thought they were fooling, till I saw a men fall, and heard cry of watch—walked up—saw an Irishman come out of the crowd, put on his cap, and say—"Damn you, take that," but does not know who he said it to. When I heard a man had been stabbed, went with some others in pursuit of the two Irishmen—they were taken. Was with J. R. French—met him in a bar-room.

5. Samuel Caldwell—a man—when coming out of the Market House saw a huddle of boys in one of the streets—supposed there was a quarrel—I got into the huddle—saw Riley make two or three stabs at Lowell's breast—saw a knife—it was two or three inches long, blade very narrow—did not see any other blow struck—Lowell was cut in the face—when Lowell was struck, he crimpered down, limber like, and fell on his face. Riley pushed against me, when he picked up his cap—I did not see Lowell go two or three feet for his cap before he fell—I came from Nova Scotia, and am a blacksmith.

6. Francis W. Crane—aged 18—Was in Mr Simmonds' store when the affray occurred: did not see it, but when informed of it, went with the others in pursuit of the Irishmen: arrested them with watchman Sargent: I asked them if they had not stabbed a man: one of them said the man who had stabbed the man had gone ahead: wont swear which of them said so. O'Neil said he had done nothing: Riley denied it three or four times: denied it after he was brought back to the spot: owned it on the way to the watch-house: at the watch-house he said he had been insulted and knocked down. When arrested, they were walking leisurely along.

7. Ebenezer Shute—Coroner—Saw Riley at the watch-house; asked him how he came to do what had been alleged against him: he replied, that he had been insulted by some boys and knocked down, and he had stabbed one of them with a penknife, which he had taken out of his pocket.

8. William R. Carnes—in Ann street—saw the young man fall, but not at the beginning of the scuffle—It occurred to him at once, that he was stabbed.

9. James Gould—aged 14—acquaintance of Lowell's—five minutes before the scuffle saw Lowell—met with him at the steps of the Market—separated—first saw the scuffle when Riley let go of Lowell—I have never been in Lowell's company when he has insulted Irishmen.

10. Luther W. Nichols—aged 17—acquainted with Lowell—had just parted foom B. L. Murphy [the witness above]—turned the corner of Merchants' Row to look after him—saw a man chase a boy into the middle of the street—ten or a dozen in the street—had been at an auction with Murphy—had no object at the market. Went up to see the difficulty—O'Neil asked Riley if he had given it to him—Riley made no answer.

11. Charles Clark—Lowell's master—Lowell was about my heighth and strength—weighed about 140 lbs.

12. Joseph Sargent—watchman—heard first a low cry of watchman—soon after another, and a boy said a boy had been stabbed, &c.—arrested O'Neil and Riley—O'Neil said he had done nothing, but that Riley had been knocked down twice—offered no resistance—both had baskets—going to the watch house, I asked Riley how he come to do it, and he said he had been knocked down twice—said he did it with a pen knife, which he had thrown away. At the watch-house, he said something about his thumb being lame as a reason for using the knife in defending himself.

13. James R. French, about 14 years—was in company with the other French: did not see the beginning of the scuffle, but heard Riley say—"Damn you, take that." O'Neil called "Watch" after Riley came out of the crowd.

14. Dr Joseph McKean—was present at the post mortem examination of Lowell's body: his frame fully developed: should have supposed him to have been 25 years of age: thought the penknife blade of the old knife shown him by counsel, might have made the wound: it was long enough to penetrate into the cavity.

Mr Parker, when Dr. McKean left the stand, said the government would rest the case on the above testimony.

The cross-examinations, conducted by Mr Choate, were extremely minute, but the witnesses did not materially vary from their statements on the direct examination.

Mr Derby commenced the opening argument for the defence, in which he stated that he should be able to prove by the most respectable witnesses that some of the boys who had testified against Riley were acting in concert with Lowell in an assault on O'Neal and Riley; that Lowell went to the Market with the avowed intention of having a row with Irishmen; that at the time he declared his intention, he also expressed his detestation and hatred of the Irish nation; that on that very evening he called upon a person to assist him in his contemplated purpose; and that in five minutes from that time he became a lifeless corse, by attempting to execute his design.

Mr Derby also said he should show, that O'Neil and Riley had been to the market to purchase provisions for their families; that they were both quiet men; that on the very week the affray happened, Riley's thumb was either sprained or dislocated, and that he had been unable to labor in consequence; that Lowell struck both him and O'Neil; that the other boys assisted; that both were knocked down; that Lowell got Riley down, and held him down by the hair and neck, while he kicked him in the stomach, and being surrounded by numbers of foes, and unable to extricate himself from the strong grasp of Lowell, he was compelled to defend himself with his knife, and struck the upward blow testified to by Dr Flint; that gangs of boys have been long in the habit of assembling round the market on Saturday nights, and assaulting and hooting at Irish people. Mr Derby spoke at length about the hostility cherished against the Irish by many people, and alluded to their patience under the injuries they had received in the destruction of the Convent, and attempts to burn their church.

The examination of the witnesses for the defence will commence this morning.

Fire and loss of Lives.—The house of Mr William Hampton, of Montgomery county, Ill. was destroyed by fire on Saturday night, the 28th ult. and three of his children perished in the flames. The eldest was about seven years of age, the youngest between two and three. The parents were both absent at the time. The fire is supposed to have originated in the following manner: Mrs Hampton in the evening went to a neighbor of the name of Brown. Previous to leaving the house, she put the children to bed, and lit a lamp which she placed on the shelf, on a cloth near which were standing two bottles of spirits turpentine, one of camphor, and several articles of clothing. The fire was communicated to the cloth on which the lamp was sitting, and thence to the spirits of turpentine, and being close to the bed soon enveloped it in the flames. The parents returned in time only to see the roof falling in, but were unable to render any assistance to the children. It appears that one of the children got out of the bed but was suffocated before it could reach the door. Thus by a melancholy accident the parents were doomed to witness the destruction of all they held dear.—Vandalia Advocate.

HIGHLY ELIGIBLE MANUFACTURING LOCATION.—The Managers of the Trenton Delaware Falls Company have the pleasure to announce to the manufacturers of the United States, that their works are now on the eve of completion, and that they are ready to furnish water power for propelling any kind of machinery.

Although the water has but recently been introduced into the race-way, seven mills of different kinds are now in operation upon it.

The Company derive their supply of water from the river Delaware, taking it therefrom by means of a canal or main race way, about five miles above the city of Trenton, and conduct it thus along the river to the village of Lamberton, three-fourths of a mile below the city, and upon the navigable tide water of the river.

The race way is 60 feet wide at the top water line, 6 feet deep, and at the lowest stage of the river known, supplies a column of water equal to 23,868 cubic feet per minute. The fall at the Assanpink is 14 feet, and at the company's sites is 18½ feet. This volume of water may be doubled when desired.

The charge for the water is $3 per square inch per annum, above the Assanpink, where the head and fall is 14 feet, and $4 below the Asanpink, where the head and fall is 18½ feet at medium tides. The above prices are upon the hypothesis that the water is drawn under a three feet head—if drawn under a less head the price is proportionably less, according to the tables of calculation in the office of the company.

A number of valuable mill sites, along the line of the raceway, owned by individuals, are now in the market. In addition to these, the company possess about 20 most eligible situations. These, it is their determination to dispose of, by sale or rent, on the most favorable terms, having procured them with this view. They have also about 200 building lots, which they design for the accommodation of the mills, on terms equally advantageous with those for the mill sites.

In addition to the above, the company contemplate in a short time, to build the shells of mills, upon favorable terms, to be agreed on, on plans to be presented to them, and these to rent with the water to manufacturers who will fill them with machinery.

They are now ready to receive proposals for leasing or selling sites—letting water—and erecting mills as above—and they invite the attention of the manufacturing community to their work.

The location of no manufacturing place could be more advantageous. In facilities of every description. Trenton far exceeds most manufacturing towns in the country. Situated between New York and Philadelphia, with a direct water communication with both cities—within two hours ride, by the Pennsylvania Railroad, of Philadelphia; and within four hours ride of New York, by the Straight Railroad, about to be constructed—lying on a noble river, navigable almost to the very doors of the mills, and penetrating a vast lumber and rich mineral and agricultural country for 150 miles above Trenton; the location is supplied on every hand with the most available means of communicating with a choice of markets, and of a certain and cheap conveyance of the raw materials to the mills. If cotton mills are established, the bales of cotton can be shipped at New Orleans and unladen at the company's wharves, without any intermediate labor or expense. If iron foundries are erected, an abundance of ore and coal may be had via the river Delaware and the Morris Canal from the Sussex and Morris iron, and Pensylvania coal mines. If merchant mills are put up, they will have the whole grain region of the valley of the Delaware to supply them. If saw mills, the hundreds of rafts of logs which every spring and fall descend the river, would be at their command. Indeed, as an abundant supply of the raw material, and a ready access to the best markets, are the great desiderata of all the various branches of manufactures, there is not one of them which could find a more eligible location in the Union than exists here.

Communications addressed to the subscriber will receive immediate attention.

PHILEMON DICKINSON, President.

Trenton, N. J. June 14, 1836.

CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.—The subscriber having completed a purchase of the exclusive right of the new and useful improvement in the Cooking Stove called the Improved Premium or Conical, takes this method to caution all persons from infringing upon his right. The stove to which he alludes is probably best known by the name of the CONICAL Stove, and has his name on the front. This stove was introduced into market in its present shape in the Spring of 1835, and about 1500 to 2000 sold. They have generally given great satisfaction, and the subscaiber has made such arrangements as will enable him to supply the market the coming season. And as he has been informed that there are persons in the vicinity of Boston, who have already commenced manufacturing them, and others are preparing to make the said stove, he deems it his duty to inform such persons, and the public generally, that prompt measures will be taken to prosecute all such infringements. He also intends having an agency in Boston, where the public can be supplied with said Conical Stove on liberal terms, at wholesale and retail.

INDIGESTION, JAUNDICE AND BILIOUS COMPLAINTS. ANDERSON'S VEGETABLE ELIXIR, for Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Jaundice and Bilious Complaints weakness of the Stomach and Bowels, and consequent loss of appetite; nervous complaints, headach, sour stomach, flatulence and habitual costiveness.

This medicine is composed entirely of vegetable substances is perfectly safe in its operation, and may be given to children or persons of the most delicate habit, without the least risk of inconvenience.

The uniform success which has attended the use of it where it has been extensively used, in Boston and various other parts of the United States, and in the West Indies, attested by disinterested and highly respectable persons, affords, next to a trial of the medicine itself, the best commentary upon its virtues and the best recommendation which can be offered to those who are unacquainted with it.

Extract of a letter received from a gentleman in Boston, who had suffered severely from indigestion for three years. 'During this time, I suffered very much from mental depression, constant pain in the head and breast, and side, sharp shooting pain over almost the whole system—the food that I ate seemed to pass into my lungs and there remain, giving me great pain as tended with a strong degree of heat. At times, I suffered so much from the pain of indigestion as to be confined to the bed for two or three days. During one of these most severe attacks I was induced by the advice of a friend to try your Vegetable Medicine. In the course of a few weeks I found myself much better, and by the time I had taken two bottles, considered myself wholly free from the complaint. I continue, on the least feeling of any thing like indigestion or pressure on the stomach, to take about a table spoonful of it, which, in the course of a few hours completely restores me. It has had with me a very wonderful effect, in strengthening the stomach and invigorating the whole system, and judging by my own case, I consider it in all diseases connected with the digestive organs, to be a very valuable medicine.

It has been found singularly efficacious in cases of the most obstinate headache.

It is put up in large bottles containing a pound and a half and sold at seventy-five cents each, by Jonathan P. Hall, Jr. No. 1, Union street, John P. Whitwell, Milk street, John I. Brown, near Boylston Market, Erastus S. Holden, near the Western Avenue, Richard A. Newell, Summer street, Boston, Samuel Kidder & Co. Charlestown, E. G. Lemon, Roxbury.

FIVE DOLLARS REWARD!!—Lost, a black and white Dog, of middling size—about half his tail and the tips of both ears have been cut off—the latter appearing a very little swollen, as if recently done. The said dog answers to the name of Trum, and was carried away yesterday by some of the numerous persons who came on shore from the 15 sail of vessels bound eastward, to view the ruins of the late conflagration which destroyed nearly all my property, and have added to that calamity the loss of my old, faithful, harmless, though too credulous dog—which can be found probably on board of some of said vessels or about the wharves.

ADAMS'S PATENT

THE subscriber has on hand a good assortment of the Swelled Beam Windlass Bedsteads, which, for comfort and convenience is undoubtedly the best article yet invented; its chief peculiarity is that of the Swelled Beam, the effect of which is to produce a crowning, and elastic sacking, and effectually provides against its saging. They are easily set up or taken down, and may be saved in case of fire as easily as any other piece of furniture, and from its mode of construction less liable to harbor insects than any other kind; but above all its advantages is the ease and comfort obtained from the sacking, by means of its being made and kept elastic by means of the Swelled Beam, (the form of which is exhibited in the above cut.)

Orders thankfully received, and promptly attended to

CHARLES ADAMS, Patentee,

422 Washington st. a few doors south of Washington Bank.

C. A. has added a steam power to his manufactory which will enable him to give a full supply at a cheaper rate than hertofore.
